

Directions for Monday

Let's challenge our thinking a little bit as we reread Hey, Little Ant: Think about two icons of Depth and Complexity: Multiple Perspectives and Ethics.

The Multiple Perspectives  icon reminds readers to notice that there are different ways of looking at a situation. In this case, the boy feels one way, and the ant another. Read it one time pretending to be the kid. How would you feel if you were him? What would you think? What would you say? What would you worry about?

Then, read the book another time pretending to be the ant. How would you feel if you were him? What would you think? What would you say? What would you worry about?

Think about these different ways of seeing the situation as you write down the reasons for each character on the Multiple Perspectives sheet. You will need this information for this week's writing assignments, which begin on Tuesday.
